Iconic works on display in drawing exhibition

For the second year in succession Nolan on Lovel Gallery is holding a drawing exhibition featuring gallery and invited artists, both from the Mountains and from further afield.

Joining the collectible artists represented by the gallery are Woodford artists Tim Allen and Michael Herron, showing courtesy of their Sydney galleries, and Elizabeth Cummings, Amanda Penrose Hart and Andrew Christofides courtesy of King Street Gallery on William.

Former Blue Mountains resident Tom Spence who has previously won both the Dobell drawing prize and the Blake Prize for religious art has also submitted one of his iconic works for the show.

Nolan on Lovel plans to curate this drawing exhibition annually, holding it at the same time as the renowned Kedumba Drawing Award, adding to the drawing experience of residents and visitors to the Mountains in November.

The exhibition runs until November 21.

This month the ever popular musical evening will take place on Saturday, November 13 at 5.30pm, featuring Maria Lindsay on violin joined by her sister Angela on viola.

The gallery is open Thursday to Sunday, 10am-5pm. For details contact 4782-6231, or www.nolanonlovelgallery.com.au.

Welsh choir in concert

The renowned Sydney Welsh Choir is performing at an afternoon concert at St Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church, Hawkesbury Road, Springwood on Sunday, November 14 at 2pm.

The Welsh choir's musical director and conductor is Viv Llewellyn, a local musician, performer and music teacher who grew up in South Wales.

Viv will also be presenting the St Thomas Aquinas School choir who will sing some pieces with the Sydney Welsh Choir as well as a few on their own.

Soprano Cheryl Priest will be the soloist and will perform a number of songs. Cheryl is known in the Blue Mountains as she often sings at the annual St Finbar's Music and Readings for Christmas.

Tickets are available from St Thomas Aquinas Parish Pastoral Centre on 4754-1052, the St Thomas Aquinas School office on 4754-2554, on 4739-0384, or at the church door on the day.
